A Treasury of Grandma Limericks

- There once was a grandma named Sue,
Whose lullabies were a treat to pursue.
She'd sing a soft tune,
To chase away gloom,
And drift her wee ones to dreams that were true.

- Emily Carter

- A little girl named Lily,
Had a grandma who knew how to rally.
With tales of faraway lands,
She took Lily's hand,
And guided her into dreams so silly.

- William Anderson

- There was a grandma named Rose,
Whose limericks put children in repose.
Her words flowed like a stream,
Carrying sweet dreams,
And leaving their hearts filled with joy.

- Sarah Jones

- A mischievous grandma named May,
Would tell tales that made her grandkids bray.

Of goblins and witches,
And silly old switches,
Leaving them giggling throughout the day.

- Michael Scott

- There was a grandma named Grace,
Whose limericks brought smiles to every face.
With a twinkle in her eye,
She'd make kids cry,
But only with laughter and warm embrace.

- Hannah Taylor
